Lots of Hearty Fun with Pie and Dr. Hammond Hails It as the Sandwiches Galore.

A Little Wet Weather Could Not Defeat Their Enjoyment of the Excursion.

Newsboys' Excursion Day comes but once a year, but when it comes it brings good cheer. Five hundred of the boys found that out once more to-day.

To the tune of "We've all Been There

Before, Many a Time," by a full brass band, accompanied by an army of whistling boys and a fusillade of pie, the thirteenth annual excursion of the newsboys moved away from the pier at the foot of Cortlandt street.

It was a wild but merry crowd of gamins that gathered at the entrance to Starin's pier at the foot of Dey street as early as 8 o'clock and created confusion among the stevedores and employees. Two policemen found it hard enough work to control the exuberance of the urchins, and worked hard until a few minutes after 9 o'clock, when the merchandise on the pier had been so arranged as to form a narrow alley leading to the end of the dock, where the double-decked barge Neilson and the tug E. L. Levy were moored.

A wagon loaded with 1,000 paper bags, each containing a whole pie, a sandwich and a cake, was backed down to the end of the was backed down to the children of the improvised alley.

When the word was given to let loose the growd of excursionists, to the number of nearly five hundred, made a rush that threatened to carry away all obstructions, and even best down the barrier of heavy merchandise.

The din was designing.

best down the barrier of heavy merchandise.

The din was desfening.
The two big policemen were carried along like corks in the surf, and with difficulty saved themselves from being overturned.
Good nature prevailed, however, for the boys were given full swing and all the license they hoped for. It was like beaven for them to be able to push a policeman without fear, and they took all advantage possible of the structure.

At the tail-board of his big wagon stood a man with a stock of the food-laden paper bags slose to his elbow. He braced himself for the rish, and as each boy made his appear-ance at the end of the alley thrust a bundle at him.

When the stream of undersized humanity flowed too freely it was momentarily checked by the adept caterer, who pushed his packages at the boys as they advanced and held each one in check for a second.

Among the crowd who passed through the alley was the ten-year-old son of Tom Lee, the well-known Mott street Chinaman.

He was a dude among the rest, for he was dressed in a neat sailor suit, with white stars on the collar of his blouse and stripes on the outside seams of his Knickerbockers.

He had a Chinese-American friend with him

He had a Chinese-American friend with him about the same age.

There were a few, also, who did not pass through and were compelled to go back. They were young fellows of the tough type who were about twenty-five years old. They tried hard to look meek and appear young, but were promptly fired.

The route from his provision wagon to the barree was a clear one and the boxs awarned.

barge was a clear one, and the boys swarmed over the clean decks of the Netlson like a lot of flies. Bage were torn open and a portion of the contents at once consumed. Few of the boys, however, were hungry enough to eat the whole pie that came with the rations.

Then the fusillade began, and everybody within throwing distance was made a target. The 'longshoremen unloading the car floats were compelled to retreat within the shelter of the sheds, and the two policemen kept well behind a stock of merchandise.

The excursion went up the North River, intending to go as far as Nyack and return. No landing will be made, but the barge will be run far enough in shore to give the boys a swim.

Enough rations were put aboard to give the

One Application Made Already for Exhibition Space.

So assured of its success are business men that already, before there is more than the shadow of an organization of the World's Exposition for 1892, they are applying for space for their exhibits. The first application of this sort, addressed to Mayor Grant, reached his office in this morning's mail.

E. L. Relogg & Co., the educational publishers, write:

In regard to the coming World's Exposition, is would be a most necessary feature to have an Educational Department among the different exhibitions. Of all the departments showing the growth of our country this would not be the least, and would tend to show by its scope and aim the progress in school building, school books, apparatus, methods of, teaching, and show to a very large extent the work done in our common schools and technical schools.

As far as we know there has been no mention as yet of an educational department, which has been such a great feature of the Centennial and Paris Expositions. We trust that the necessity for such an important exhibit will not be overlooked by your unaking up your list of exhibits.

We should be glad to name one or two good men for you to select from to put on your General Committee.

Five Hundred of Them Affoat on the Claims of Dr. Brown-Sequard's Wonderful Elixir Confirmed.

Secret of Perennial Youth,

Surprising Results of the Use of the Liquid Upon Old and Disabled Persons.

THE EVENING WORLD recently gave its readers an interesting account of the wonderful discovery recently made by Dr. Brown-Sequard, of Paris, of a new clixir of life by which aged and decrepit persons could be rejuvenated in a most marvellous manuer.

Following right upon this comes the news that the discovery of Dr. Brown-Sequard has been -tested by Dr. William A. Hammond, the well-known medical expert, now living at Washington, who has not only fully confirmed the claims made for the French chemist's clixir, but has gone still further and improved upon the lie-giving fluid discovered by his colleague.

Dr. Hammond admits that when he first heard of the discovery he was extremely sceptical about it, especially as the early accounts were so crude and incomplete

A fuller description of the process, howsceptical about it, especially as the early accounts were so crude and incomplete

A fuller description of the process, however, convinced him that there was more in it than he had at first believed, and after his own experiment in the clixir field he has become an enthusiastic convert.

He does not hesitate to declare that the fountain of perennial youth has been discovered, and that the goal of the alchemists has finally been attained.

It was not many days ago that Dr. Hammond began his experiments in his laboratory at Washington, and his success has been a matter for astonishment even to himself.

It will be remembered that Dr. Brown-Sequard used part of Guinea-pigs' bodies from which to obtain the materials for his compound, and the life-giving fluid was extracted from the pulp into which these fragments were crushed in a mortar.

Dr. Hammond says that he has experimented with other materials well, and that he finds that lamb's meat freshly killed furnishes the best basis for the clixir.

In making the fluid he takes selected portions of the lamb, and after pounding them to a pulp in a mortar adds to the mass two or three spoonsful of pure water.

After mixing it well with the pulp the fluid is filtered through fine Swiss filtering paper, and it comes out pure and transparent and is slightly threker than water.

The greatest care must be taken that the fluid contains no particles of tissue, for these, if injected under the skin, would cause sores and abcesses.

And the thing to be careful of is to take and abcesses.

And the thing to be careful of is to take only the flesh of an animal freshly killed. There is danger if the carcass is more than twenty four hours old that blood poisoning night ensue.

Dr. Hammond says that the clixir which he has manufactured from lamb's firsh has produced wonderful results in a very short time.

One old man, who had not been able to move his arm ou account of rheumatism for more than a year, found it as limber as ever only a few hours after the clixir had been injusted.

only a few hours after the clixir had been injected.

Several other persons whom he has treated with the clixir, without their knowledge of its powers, have shown the most marvellous symptoms of rejuvenation.

Dr. Hammond admits that it is too early yet to make sweeping conclusions in regard to his jelixir, but he is going to institute a series of experiments which will thoroughly test the powers of this new life-giving fluid.

Its possibilities are enormous, but they are not yet fully understood. It will require a long time to obtain a full knowledge of them.

According to Dr. Brown-Sequard, after a man has once been rejuvenated by the elixir one hypodermic injection a month is sufficient to put him looking and feeling from twenty to thirty years younger than he really in is.

The most interesting point, which yet remains to be exertained, is how long the system may be kept in this vigorous and youthful condition by means of the clixir.

Will it continue to act as potently after the subject has been dosed for six months as it did at first, or like the opium and cocaine fiend will his system demand more and more of the exhibitanting final, until he gets into such a condition that a failure of supplies would result in a total and immediate collapse?

If, as experiments thus far have shown, the patient requires less and less of the clixir after the first treatment to keep his system toned up to the proper mark, there is a very strong probability that the threescore and ten limit will have to be pegged up considerably higher, if we do not actually get back to he records of the good old times of Methuseah and the rest of the antedituvians.

The ocean air excursions of the Society to Rockaway and Coney Island, in immediate cooperation with the medical corps of the Board of Health, have been favorably received by the public, as happy and effective in their sanitary and medical appointments. The Society in this, the forty-first year of its work, is now extending its facilities to increase and make more effective these excursions to the seashore.

It recognizes the undismembered family as the citatel of public morality, as also the normal fact that fresh air excursions can be a substantial benefit to the neer only so far as they are composed, in the main, of groups of families, rather than general promisenous gatherings.

The Society has arrangements with the Iron Steamboat Company as heretofore for the "All Water Route" from pier No. 1. North River, to the iron piers at West Brighton, near the Pavilion on Ocean Beach, Coney Island.

The Society issues packages of excursion tickets at reasonable rates for purchase and distribution by the philanthropically inclined.

man by birth, who has spent most of the last thirty years in the jail. he was originally committed at his own remest, and has remained of his own volition. He was born in Warrington, Laucashire.

where he received an excellent education. When in his teens, it is said, his love for a pretty flower-girl caused his parents to rebuke thim to such an extent that he left his home and oved one and came to America.

He was not without money, and after coming to America he spent a short period in New York, and then came to Hoston, where he located and carried on a successful tailoring business.

He fell a victim to the wine cup, however, and became an habitnal drunkard.

One day he not in an americance in the town

One day he put in an appearance in the town of Dedham. He was financially embarrassed, and his desire was that he be placed in the county jail.

A complaint made out in due form of law was preferred against him, and he was sentenced to a short period of confinement for vagrancy or drunkenness.

That was the beginning of the jail life whi has stretched through so many years since.

He despatched the reptile, which, by actual measurement, is cleven feet long. He noticed swellings and cut the snake open.

Inside were two china nest eggs, which the snake had swallowed.

The snake belonged to Hermit Greenrod, and was one of his trained collection, which he kept in his cellar, a league from Condon's farm.
